Dear Ms. Sachs:

Thank you for inviting me to address the University of Virginia's John Bassett Moore Society of International Law in Charlottesville. I appreciate your thinking of me; however, my schedule is such that I cannot make a commitment at this time.

I certainly have good memories of my visit to your beautiful campus, and I enjoyed addressing the law school in October, 1986. Best wishes for a successful program year.

Sincerely yours,

RE: Speaking Invitation
John Bassett Moore Society of International Law
University of Virginia School of Law
Charlottesville, Virginia
September - November or Spring Term

Caryn Sachs, Vice-President of Programs for the University of Virginia School of Law John Bassett Moore Society, has invited you to address the student body of the Law School sometime this fall or next spring. The suggested format is 60 minutes of remarks on a topic of your choice followed by 20-30 minutes of questions and answers. John Bassett Moore, a well known jurist and a former Assistant Secretary of State, now heads the law school's Oceans Law and Policy Department and has suggested your name to the Society for their distinguished speakers program.

Since you spoke at the University of Virginia Law School and spent several days on campus in October 1986, I recommend that you decline this invitation. If you agree, attached is a letter of regret for your signature.

The Honorable William H. Webster
Director
Central Intelligence Agency

Dear Mr. Webster:

As Vice-president of programs for The University of Virginia's John Bassett Moore Society of International Law, one of my responsibilities is to seek out distinguished people from various fields of law to come and speak to the student body of the law school. This year the J. B. Moore Society is committed to sponsoring an academically distinctive and diversified speaker series. With that goal in mind the society's officers, with the help of several law professors, are sending out requests to people, such as yourself, to come and give a speech on a topic of your choice. Typically, such a speech is not longer than one hour and is then followed by a twenty to thirty minute question and answer session. The society also offers transportation, (for speakers using the Charlottesville airport), accommodations and dining.

Your name comes highly recommended to me by Professor Moore, who heads the law school's Oceans Law and Policy Department, as one of the society's potential speakers for this Fall term. The society would be both honored and delighted to have you speak at the University of Virginia's School of Law either in September, October or November. Alternatively, should the Fall term prove to be an inconvenient time in your schedule we can move a speaking engagement to the Spring term.

While The J. B. Moore Society's funds are quite modest, the officers will take into consideration a requested amount for speaking and notify people of its ability to meet such a request. Should there be any questions, and for further information, please do not hesitate to contact me at the following number: (804) 296-1106.

I look forward to hearing from you and perhaps setting up a speaking date. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Caryn P. Sachs
Vice-President of Programs
John Bassett Moore Society of International Law
